THE NEW APPORTIONMENT

Counties to Have One Assemblyman for Each 43,600 People

Harrisburg, Feb. 7.—The new legislative apportionment of figures, based on the 1920 Federal census, entitles each county in Pennsylvania to one representative for each 43,600 inhabitants, according to announcement today, and as the old figures were one representative for each 31,511 of population, 12 counties will lose one member each in the House, eight will gain one additional member, one will gain two and one will gain three. County and legislative district maps are now being printed showing the latest census figures. While the unit is 43,600, any district having more than half that figure in excess of its qualifications for one representative is entitled to an additional representative. In other words the minimum for two representatives is 65,401.

Beaver, Delaware, Indiana, Erie, Montgomery, Washington, Westmoreland and Northampton, according to this apportionment, would each gain one member, while Bradford, Clearfield, Crawford, Cumberland, Franklin, Jefferson, Lancaster, Lebanon, McKean, Tioga, Venango and York would each lose one. Allegheny county would gain three new members, having a total of 27 instead of the present 24; Cambria county would gain two new members and Philadelphia would remain at present with 41, while Clearfield would be divided into districts, New Castle, in Lawrence county, would become a separate district. Bedford County will be represented by one member as usual.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Charles G. Dawes, former Brigadier General, returned to his bank here pleased with his experience in Washington.

"A man has either to cry or swear," said he. "Charles Schwab did the crying and Charley Dawes did the swearing.

"I am footloose. Politician are tied up and army officers are not in much better condition, so I gave them the 'other barrel'.

"We have got to forget politics and get this Nation down on a sound basis. Forget Germans and hyphens and get down to work and production. I don't say I talked too much in Washington, but there is such a thing as too much talking, and I don't want to do that now. I am not a candidate for any office, not even chief dog catcher."

ANDREW W. MELLON, OF PITTSBURGH CHOSEN SECRETARY OF TREASURY

Andrew W. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, has been chosen by President-elect Harding to be his secretary of Treasury. Mr. Mellon is a very wealthy banker and has family connections which financially will total into the billions. He is a reactionary of the old type and stands close to Penrose. He is a director and officer of Banks and Insurance Companies aggregating $860,193,541 and has other corporation assets of $753,480,928 making a total of $1,613,674,469 for which he is directly responsible and by marriage and relationship he controls twice that amount. A brief history of him follows:

Mellon, Andrew William, banker; born at Pittsburgh, Pa., 1852; son of the late Judge Thomas and Sarah Jane (Negley) Mellon; educated University of Pittsburgh (then Western University of Pennsylvania); married Nora McMullen, 1900. Associated with Henry C. Frick in development of coal, coke and iron enterprises. Was trustee Carnegie Institute. Founded town of Denora, Pa., where he established great steel mills. Clubs, Duquesne & Home Woodland, Road, Pittsburgh.

BANK MULTIPLIES REWARD

Will Pay $5000 Instead of $500 for Apprehension of Bandits.

Reading, Pa., Feb. 7.—The directors of the People's Trust Company, Wyomissing, increased their reward from $500 to $5000 for the apprehension of the bandits who looted the institution of upwards of $100,000. Late developments show that the bandits did not use the Bernville road in motoring back to Reading but took a short cut from the road to the north of the Textile Machine Works to the culvert under the belt line leading to Reading by way of Glenside and the Schuylkill avenue bridge.

Arthur B. Wade, of North Wyomissing, saw the machine speeding toward the culvert. Mr. and Mrs. George Palm, who live near the culvert, found the Pennsylvania license tag removed from the stolen automobile of H. J. Raudenbush, contractor, and blue-prints for buildings in a pit used for dumping purposes near the culvert. Mrs. Palm says she saw the bandits change the license tag on the machine.

The authorities have made no definite progress in obtaining clues that might lead to the arrest of the robbers. The hold-up will not affect the stability of the bank and no depositors will lose anything.

It has been definitely fixed that the eight men who boarded the train for Harrisburg were eight high school boys who attended a swimming meet at Mercersburg. The latest rumors is that two of the men remained in this city until Saturday afternoon and then went to Philadelphia by automobile with two local women posing as whiskey agents. The $5 tip given the jitney driver aroused his suspicion and he told the police. The women returned to Reading unaccompanied and said they left the men in Philadelphia.

STATE TO DISTRIBUTE ABUNDANCE OF TREES.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 6.—The Pennsylvania Department of Forestry will distribute free this spring about 3,500,000 forest tree seedlings to private land owners in the State. Last year, 2,748,120 seedlings were given without cost to 729 private planters.

Since 1903, when the State nurseries began producing young trees, the total output has been 45,909,309 seedlings. About 34,000,000 of them have been planted by the Department of Forestry on State forest lands, and the remainder have been planted by individual land owners. Some of the largest plantations have been established by coal mining, water and lumber companies. Scores of farmers, however, have planted thousands of seedlings on waste and idle land that is not suited for growing agricultural crops.

Twelve nurseries will be started this spring at State reformatories, hospitals and sanitariums. The institution will supply land, labor, teams and equipment. The Forestry Department will provide seed and supervision. The seedlings and transplants grown at the State institutions, as well as those grown in the Department's nurseries, will be given free for planting throughout the State. An annual demand for 20,000,000 forest trees and for 15,000 shade and ornamental trees is expected by the Forestry Department officials by 1925.

So far this winter, applications have been received from 220 planters for 1,120,332 trees. The Department's supply of black walnut, white ash and Jack pine seedlings is completely exhausted. The output of Norway Spruce and honey locust is being applied for in such quantities that it will soon be gone. There is available for future applicants, however, a large supply of white pine and pitch pine seedlings.

ENTERTAIN BIBLE CLASS

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Fletcher of West Pitt St. entertained the Look-out Bible Class of the Methodist Church on Friday evening Feb. 4. A business meeting was held for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year. The following were elected: Pres. Mrs. A. W. Fletcher, Vice Pres. Mrs. F. H. Naus, Sec. Mrs. A. R. Hanks, Treas. Miss Josephine Browning. A very enjoyable social hour was spent after which refreshments were served. Those present were: Teacher Mr. J. W. Galey, Mrs. J. Blymyer, Mrs. F. Pate, Mrs. H. Hershberger, Mrs. A. Guyer, Mrs. W. Barnhart, Mrs. Alice Millburn, Mrs. Sarah Burket, Mrs. Mary Corle, Mrs. F. Mann, Mrs. F. Todd, Mrs. L. Manges, Mrs. Lizzie Drenning, Mrs. Murray Leader, Mrs. Phil Morgart, Mrs. F. Kams, Mrs. Ella Little, Mrs. Margaret Little, Mrs. F. H. Naus, Mrs. A. R. Hanks, Mrs. Annie Carbaugh, Mrs. Haddon, Misses Josephine Browning, Elsie Lesh, Maud Lesh, Effie Fetters, Dora Bagley, Sarah Black, Mary Morgart, one visitor, Little Miss Mary Louise Morgart pleased the company with a fine reading.

Mr. G. T. Jacobs, Secretary.

Next Sunday afternoon, Feb 13th at 2:30 Rev. J. Albert Eyer will hold Communion Services at the Pleasant Hill Reformed Church, Imletown. The offering will be for the Apportionment and as every congregation in Juniata Classes is going to take pride in paying her apportionment in FULL this year it is hoped the offering will be a very large one. Envelopes will be provided at the church for those who come without them. When a charge is temporarily without a pastor and is thus relieved of the expense of supporting one the obligation to pay the apportionment becomes all the greater.

Mrs. Mary McCallion

Mrs. Mary McCallion who has been making her home at Victor E. P. Barkman's died at 2:45 yesterday afternoon. Obituary will appear next week.

EXCITING BAIL GAMES

The first girl's inter-class game of the season was played between the Junior and Senior teams last Friday evening. Class spirit ran high during the game, and if cheering cheering counts for anything both teams should have won. The girls displayed the result of much thorough practice and put on an exceedingly lively and exciting game, which ended with the score of 13-3 in favor of the Seniors.

The same evening our High School Boys played Saxton High School. The spectators were treated to much fine playing by both teams. The score favored Saxton from the beginning, as our players were very much out of shape in size by the Saxton fellows.

Saxton displayed the best team work that has ever been seen on our floor, although one could not see much for the persistent fighting of our boys. In spite of some remarkable shots by Brightbill and Souser, and some very good guarding by Prosser, Smith and others, Saxton was the victor with a score 36-13.

A preliminary game will be played between the girls team of the Sophomore and Freshmen classes this evening at 8:15 before the game between the American Legion and Somerset.

DOINGS OF THE BEDFORD COUNTY FARM BUREAU.

Potato and Fruit growers of Friend's Cove will meet Friday night at Charlesville to make plans for cooperative spraying and introducing better seed. The Farm Bureau has arranged for Mr. G. F. Miles, plant disease specialist of the Pennsylvania State College to be at this meeting to tell what results may be expected for the work.

Mr. Miles spends all his time in traveling over the state to help with spraying work, and his assistance and advice should be invaluable.

The County Agent has located some clean potato seed of the Dible's Russet variety, and an order is being made up for its purchase at a reasonable figure. Persons who are interested in this work in the Friend's Cove vicinity should attend the meeting.

Folks around New Paris have gotten the community spirit and purchased a Babcock milk tester as part of the High School equipment. A demonstration of this machine was given at a Community meeting and the Farm Bureau proposed to form a Boys and Girls Milk Testing Club. The young folks who go in for this will bring a sample of milk from each cow at home and test it for butter fat which together with the weight of milk and the amount of feed fed will give them the profit or loss for each animal. Other details will be considered which will add to the results. This furnishes excellent farm training to the future farmers and may be the cause of dad getting some good cows to replace some low producers.

SIXTH ANNIVERSARY BIBLE CLASS

The Brotherhood Bible Class of the Reformed Church is celebrating its sixth birthday. Sunday night at which time Dr. C. J. Williams of Philadelphia will deliver the anniversary sermon.

The Class extends an invitation to their many friends and to the many friends of Dr. Musser to be present Sunday night at 7:30.

The Male Quartette will render special music.

LICENSES TOBACCO LIKE THOSE UNDER THE BROOKS ACT

Hits Soft Drinks Both Have Rigid Restrictions.

Reform started this week in Harrisburg. One measure is to regulate and restrain the manufacture and sale of tobacco and the other to do the same with soft drinks. A license in Philadelphia would cost $2.00 dealers in cities of the second class would be required to pay $175, in the third class $100 and in boroughs and townships $50.

According to the terms of the bill a dealer would be hedged in with rules and regulations of all kinds. Violation of the provision of the act carries a penalty of $100, or imprisonment of not less than three months or more than six.

Application for a license to sell cigars, cigarettes or tobacco in any other form, must contain, a history of the applicant, including the place of his birth, together with a minute description of the premises on which he proposes to carry on the nefarious traffic. In order that there might be no mistake regarding the contents of his petition, the act required that it be accompanied by the signatures of 12 qualified electors of the district in which he resides. Signers of the petition must have known the applicant for at least two years and be somewhat familiar with his life and habits. One of the electors would be required to make affidavit to his knowledge of the character of the applicant.

"If any citizen is aggrieved by the issuing of such license," says Section 10 "the same may be revoked by the Court of Quarter Sessions upon petition and no other license shall issue to such person for a period of two years."

There is a difference, however, in the penalty for violation. Dealers who fail to live up to all the provisions of the drink and beverage license law would, on conviction, be required to pay a fine of $500 or undergo imprisonment of not less than six months nor more than two years.

DAWES GLORIFIES ACHIEVEMENT OF COUNTRY IN WAR

Attacks What He Terms Political Attempts to Discredit Good Work.

APPEARS FOR DEMOCRATS

Statements Believed to Indicate He Will Not Join Harding Cabinet.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Declaring he was not in politics and was not going in, Charles E. Dawes, of Chicago, former chief of supplies procurement for the American army in France, bitterly attacked today what he charged were political attempts to discredit the achievements of the people who won the war.

In the course of a five-hour examination by a House war investigation committee, Mr. Dawes struck with sledgehammer blows at critics who had tried, he said, to detract from the glory of the great achievement, by picking flaws and parading trivial faults three thousand miles away.

At times the air was thick with a streak of oaths, for which the witness frankly confessed he had neither apology nor excuse.

Late in the day he reiterated an earlier off-hand statement as to his own part in politics, which was accepted to mean that he would not become a member of Mr. Harding's cabinet, a position with which his name has been linked. Even before his views on this subject were expressed, Mr. Dawes sharply denounced the present system of conducting the federal government, an evil of a hundred years standing, he declared with which investigators might better afford to deal, instead of trying to scoop up water already over the dam.

Mr. Dawes was called by Democratic members of the committee to rebut testimony relating to waste and extravagance, and particularly with reference to liquidation of American accounts in France and sale of surplus stocks to the French government.

DAWES, HOME, GLAD HE LET 'EM HAVE IT

Now Urges We Forget Politics, War and Everything and Get Down to Work.

ALL DAWES'S "DAMNS" CENSORED IN RECORD

Washington, Feb. 4.—Strict censorship will be exercised over the official prints of the testimony of Charles G. Dawes before a Congressional War Investigating Committee this week. All "hells," "damns" and stronger utterances, including even the frequent "hell Marias" used by Gen. Pershing's former supply chief to express his feelings adequately will be knocked out. That was agreed on when the argument started, so Mr. Dawes, as he asked to be called, "let 'er go, regardless."

BEDFORD COUNTY ROAD CONVENTION

The eighth annual Convention of the Supervisors and Good Roads Association of Bedford County will be held in the Court House Bedford, Penna. Wednesday and Thursday Feb. 16 and 17, 1921 which all citizens interested in "Better Township Roads" and supervisors are invited to attend and help work out plans whereby our county may in the future receive its full share of all funds for road purposes appropriated by the state.

The vital question of road improvement should receive the earnest co-operation of all citizens and supervisors to the end that better road conditions may be secured in all parts of the county.

The State Highway Department will send a representative who will answer all questions and explain the laws relating to roads.

Able speakers will discuss all phases of the road question.

An evening session has been arranged which includes an illustrated Road Lecture by J. W. Hunter Twp. Road Commissioner and music.

All who favor better roads should plan to attend these sessions and invite their friends.

The following letter from the State Highway Department addressed to the Supervisors will explain itself and impress the need of taking full advantage of all the state assistance in our road work it is possible to secure.

CABINET AND DEFICIT

Philadelphia Record.

From yesterday's New York Times, a journal independent in politics and not disposed to be critical of the incoming national Administration, we take this interesting bit of news sent by a staff correspondent regarding the make-up of the new Cabinet:

In his consideration of a selection for the Treasury Department, Mr. Harding has a delicate matter to decide, in view of the withdrawal of Charles G. Dawes from candidacy for that position. The present situation involves ways and means of paying off the Republican campaign deficit of about $1,600,000. In the form of loans this amount has been almost entirely underwritten by a number of banks in large cities of the East and Middle West.

Mr. Mellon's bank in Pittsburgh is understood to have underwritten $1,500,000 of this deficit. Through John W. Weeks, mentioned for Secretary of War, a Boston bank is said to have subscribed $100,000. This places two candidates with negotiations to underwrite the Republican campaign debt.

The President-elect is understood to be in favor of paying these loans as soon as possible.

By analogy it is not fair to presume that ex-Governor Lowden, of Illinois, who is reported to be slated for Secretary of the Navy, and who is backed by the millions of the Pullman family, has also done his share toward wiping out the deficit of the Republican National Committee. In this connection it is also interesting to note a sudden boom for another Republican multi-millionaire, John Hays Hammond, who is being regarded as a generous giver to get at least $100,000 from him toward the elimination of the annoying deficit.

Rarely have we seen a more instructive combination of high finance and politics, of Cabinet-making and debt reduction. Certainly these Republicans have a full appreciation of the importance of a dollar. In a Cabinet made up of Mellons, Lowdens, Hammonds, Weekses etc., we need look for no foolish idealism. Money will do the talking all the time.

Somebody sent the editor of the Pockettown Gazette a few bottles of home brew. The same day he received for publication a wedding announcement and a notice of an Auction Sale. Here are the results:

Wm Smith and Miss Lucy Anderson were disposed of at public auction at my farm, one mile east of a beautiful cluster of roses on her breast and two white calves, before a background of farm implements, too numerous to mention, in the presence of about 70 guests, including two milch cows six miles and one bob sled. Rev. Jackson tied the nuptial knot with 200 feet of hay rope and the bride couple left on one good John Deering plow for an extensive trip with terms to suit purchaser. They will be at home to their friends with one good baby buggy and a few kitchen utensils, after ten months from date of sale to responsible parties, and some 50 chickens—Exchange.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(© 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 13

LESSONS ON CITIZENSHIP. (May Be Used With Temperance Applications).

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 22:35-40.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.
This is the first and great commandment.
And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.—Matt. 22:
37-39.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 23:
1-28, Mark 12:13-17, 28-37, Luke 20:20-28, 41-44; Rom. 13:1-14; Phil. 3:17-21.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Land We Love.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Our Country.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC
—Getting Ready for Citizenship.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC
—Christian Standard of Citizenship.

I. The Tribute Money (vv. 15-22).
The Pharisees and Herodians pur-posed to entrap Jesus and bring Him into conflict with the Roman government, so they came to Him with the subtle question, "Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not?" At this time the Jews were galling under the yoke of the Roman government. Some even denied the right to pay tribute to the government. To have answered this question by "yes" or "no" would have involved difficulties. To have answered "yes" would have conveyed the impression of endorsement of all that the Roman government did. To have answered "no" would have at once brought Him into conflict with the government. It is not an easy matter for a Christian always to determine his right relation to civil government.
Many a minister has made a failure of his work because he tried to solve the problem. Christ's reply to this question, properly understood and applied, is the final word on the subject. Until the civil authorities demand of us that which is a violation of God's law, we are bound to render unto them obedience. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's" means the highest obligation. Since enjoying His protection and care it is our duty to owe all allegiance to Him, to yield our lives to Him in service, worship and praise. Every one who enjoys the benefits of civil government is obliged to pay the taxes which are necessary for the support of that government, and every one who receives God's favor is placed under a like obligation unto Him.

II. The Great Commandment in the Law (vv. 34-40).

For the third time in one day the Lord is tried by hard questions. While these questioners were actuated by wrong motives, we may be forever glad that they put these questions to Him because of the invaluable truth which His answers set forth.

1. The first commandment (vv. 34-38). "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." This means that supreme and undivided love to God is the first and great commandment. This at once shows that man's supreme obligation is to God.
It is wrong to evaluate man's character on the basis of his morality as expressed in his relation to his fellow man.

2. The second commandment (vv.
38-40). The second commandment is like unto the first in that it centers in love. It is not said that it is equal unto the first; that would not be true.
A man may love himself, but not supreinely. One's love for his neighbor may be either too much or too little.
The measure set is love for self. We should love God better than ourselves.
He is worthy of all our affections and demands all. Love is not mere emotion, but a supreme desire for the welfare of another and a willingness to do everything possible to secure that end. The command to love our neighbor is involved in the command to love God. To pretend to love God is folly if we do not love our neighbor. No one does really love his neighbor who does not love God. To attempt to establish a brotherhood among men without the recognition of the Fatherhood of God is utter nonsense. Men become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ. It is true that in the sense of being God's creatures all men are God's children, but in the New Testament sense men are only God's children as they are in Christ. Beware of the man who is constantly crying for the brotherhood of man and is at the same time rejecting Jesus Christ.
The only real way to bring in the brotherhood of man is to preach Jesus Christ unto the race and secure their acceptance of Him. We thus become brothers in the real sense of the term, when we have God as our Father. All obligations resting upon man are embraced in these two commandments.
Those who conform their lives to them are God's children and are the very best citizens.

The "U. S." Bootee

Wear them all day— your feet stay dry and comfortable

WHEN the ground is wet, and your job means lots of walking, what sort of footwear do you put on? Ordinary leather shoes get soaked and caked with mud in no time.

For such work you need the lightweight comfort of a shoe combined with the protection of a boot. And here at last is a shoe that gives you this combination—the U. S. Bootee.
It's a watertight rubber shoe—designed originally for miners, and now becoming popular with farmers everywhere.

Solid comfort all the time—that's what the U. S. Bootee means for you.
It fits smoothly over your sock like an ordinary shoe. It gives you perfect freedom of movement, yet in the wettest weather—over the muddiest ground—it keeps your feet absolutely dry.

At the very places where rubber footwear is usually weakest, the U. S.
Bootee has been made strongest.
Its sole consists of heavy layers of the finest rubber. All other points of strain are heavily reinforced.

Ask your dealer to show you a pair of the new U. S. Bootees. Note their waterproof, smooth rubber surface—feel how pliable and comfortable they are—examine for yourself their wonderful built-to-wear construction.

The U. S. line of footwear has a type for every need—arctics, rubbers, "overs." Every one is backed by over half a century of experience.
The rubber comes from our own plantations—the whole process of manufacture is supervised by experts.

Always look for the U. S. Seal—it means solid wear and long service for your money.

Fordson

The Ford Motor Company have just issued a book called "The Fordson at Work". This book is given free. Call in and get one. If you cannot call, write and we will mail you one without charge. It is not what the Ford Motor Company says about the Fordson Tractor but what the army of users say. This book voices the hardest kind of practical experience. It shows in illustration the Fordson Tractor at actual work along some ninety different lines of activity. It shows in these illustrations the wonderful versatility and utility of the Fordson Tractor. Shows it to be, beyond all question, the one bit of machinery that is a necessity, not only on the farm but along many lines of commercial business; especially does it show up the Fordson as a valuable servant on the farm. With it the farmer is relieved of the hard work; because he can take advantage of the weather in preparing his seed bed; he can do it at the right time; the same is true when it comes to harvesting. It solves, to a great extent, the problem of scarcity of labor.

With its wonderful, reliable power, it brings to the farm house all the conveniences, in the way of running water in the house, electric lights, operation of the wash machine, churning, separating the cream from the milk; it assumes and takes to itself the drudgery of farm life both in the field and in the house and it is only a matter of a few years until it will be as universal in its service on the farm as is the farmer himself. It will become a part of farm life; a beneficial part; a profitable part. Get order in for there's a rush coming.

Clarksburg.—Brigadier General Myers mustered in a new company of the Uniform Rank, K. of P., here.

Martinsburg.—The Chamber of Commerce voted to enter the fight to relieve the housing shortage here.

Glendale.—William, the small son of Charles Blakemore, strangled to death when a peanut lodged in his throat.

Huntington.—Twenty-four men were accepted as recruits in the army in one day. They were sent to various army posts.

Fairmont.—The Odd Fellows Lodge purchased the Grand Opera House and will remodel it into an up to date lodge temple.

Morgantown.—Joseph A. Krepps qualified as executor for the James L. Krepps estate. He gave bond of $10,000.

Martinsburg.—This city is to establish a bureau of weights and measures, and an official sealer will be placed in charge.

Point Pleasant.—Burglars rifled the B. & O. station at Brosia, but got no loot. The station agent had removed all funds.

Morgantown.—Fourteen members of the West Virginia University football squad were awarded "letters" at a ceremony here.

Bluefield.—At a meeting here the Mercer County Sunday School Association was formed and C. B. Hancock was elected president.

Elm Grove.—Delphino Arman had an arm severely crushed when a coal car on which he was riding in a mine here jumped the track.

Huntington.—Nine-tenths of the $703,820 of federal funds for road building in this section has been used in construction work.

Huntington.—Reported deaths here exceed the birth rate, figures show. Officials, however, say physicians often fail to report births.

Huntington.—The French department of the local high school will present the play, "L'Anglais Quel Qu'on le Parle," on February 4.

Morgantown.—John Dennis, of this city, ran into the crime wave in Pittsburgh. He was held up and relieved of $65 by two masked men.

Morgantown.—Monot McIntyre, former head coach at West Virginia University, has signed a contract to coach at Phillips College, Enid, Okla.

Fairmont.—The name of the Penn-Mary Coal Company, owned by Bethlehem Steel interests, was changed to the Bethlehem Mine Corporation.

Morgantown.—The factory of the Everbright Mirror Company here was destroyed by fire entailing a loss of $25,000. Had water pressure been adequate, it is charged, the plant would have been saved.

Charleston.—Andy Hathaway, under indictment for malicious wounding of Mark Surface near their homes in Newhouse Branch, after a conference between his attorneys and the prosecuting attorney entered a plea of unlawful wounding in the intermediate court and after the preliminaries he was sentenced by Judge Black to serve one year in the state prison.

Huntington.—Shoeless children numbering more than a dozen have applied for footgear to Mrs. Nera Forest, truant officer, during the cold snap.

Berkeley Springs.—Raymond Custer, of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., an American relief worker, has been arrested by Turkish Nationalists at Sivas, Anatolia, and sentenced to six months' imprisonment for resisting and threatening Turkish gendarmes. This information was obtained in a cable message received in New York at Near East Relief Headquarters.

Fairmont.—Several bank notes, raised from $2 to $20 are known to be in circulation here. Police have asked citizens to be on watch for them.

St. Marys.—When Mrs. Edmond Hooper poured oil into her stove to start a fire she caused a blaze that may result in her death and that of her two children.

Moundsville.—The Fort Pitt Coal Company bought 25 acres of coal land near here from B. F. Ports and will extend their operations to the new acreage.

Morgantown.—John Wetherton, negro miner, is suffering from a serious bullet wound in his right lung, inflicted during a quarrel over a crap game at a nearby mine.

Huntington.—Mrs. Maude F. Tassen, 26, drank an ounce of carbolic acid in an attempt to commit suicide. Physicians say she will recover. She is separated from her husband.

Bluefield.—Fire caused by a defective flue caused the destruction of the commissary department of the Peerless Coal and Coke Company at Vivian. The loss will reach $65,000.

Huntington.—A fallen trolley wire set fire to a Huntington-Ashland car and passengers hurried out of it, huddled in a raging storm and waited for a relief car to be sent to them.

Huntington.—No change is noted in the condition of three-year-old Thomas Doss, afflicted with sleeping sickness for two weeks. Physicians believe the child will sleep two more weeks.

Bluefield.—Myrtle Chapman, held in connection with the death of Hoge Woodyard, has confessed to the shooting, police say. Jealousy of the man who she says ruined her life was given as the cause of the shooting.

Charleston.—The body of Joseph Myers was found with a bullet hole in the eye here, in his small grocery store at Kanawha City, Charleston suburb. His clothing had been rifled and no money could be found in the establishment. County detectives, following a robbery theory, are hunting for suspects they say are known to have been in the vicinity.

Charleston.—Claiming to be real estate men and wanting to sell a piece of property worth $10,000 to Steve Crist, who runs a hot dog stand on Court street, three men in a red automobile took Crist out into MacFarlane street and holding him up at the point of guns took from him the sum of $4,000 in cash which he had recently drawn from a local bank, and made good their escape. Police headquarters were notified by the bank and Lieutenant W. A. Truly started an investigation.

Piedmont.—The trapping of a 288-pound black bear at Henry, W. Va., on the Western Maryland railway, south of here, broke up a service held in a church nearby. The bear had been carrying off pigs, calves and sheep, and Arnold Stahl set a trap. En route to church with friends Stahl stopped to look at his trap to find a bear standing nearly six feet high. Revolver shots only infuriated the animal, which became frenzied. Several well-directed shots from a rifle ended him. In the meantime, several hundred people, who had assembled for church, were attracted to the scene. The meat was divided among members of the hunting party and friends.

Charleston.—The recording of 6,000 real estate transfers in the assessor's office as a basis for the coming tax assessment has imposed so much work on the force that it is a question if the work can be finished by April 1, unless assistance is given by the makers of the transfers. The assessor is asking that all makers of deeds since April 1, 1920, will call at the office in the county court building and lend some assistance as to the description of the property to be transferred. Such assistance, says the assessor, will obviate the necessity of making a complete abstract of the property and facilitate the work of the office.

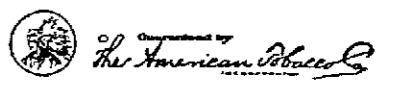

Charleston.—In co-operation with the State Commissioner of Agriculture, J. H. Stewart, the United States Bureau of Stock Estimates gives an estimated production of 22,100,000 bushels of corn; 7,000,000 bushels of apples, of which 1,670,000 barrels (of 3 bushels each) was the commercial crop; 4,250,000 bushels of wheat; 5,400,000 bushels of oats; 6,840,000 bushels of Irish potatoes; 10,400,000 pounds of tobacco and 1,010,000 tons of hay. According to the detailed estimates of the more important crops there was an increased production over 1919 in oats, potatoes, sweet potatoes, sorghum, soy beans, apples, peaches and pears. There was a less production than 1919 of tobacco, wheat, buckwheat, rye, hay, beans, maple sugar and syrup. The production of corn and cowpeas was the same in both years.

Huntington.—Charged with a systematic robbery of United States mails Lowell William Black, aged 41, post-office truck driver, is said to have admitted to United States authorities that he has stolen merchandise valued at several hundred dollars. Black was arrested on a warrant sworn out by B. L. Pitcher, postoffice inspector who also swore out a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Alice Smith, 26. Pitcher declared he had recovered approximately $500 worth of merchandise from the woman's home at 825½ Third avenue.

PROPER TIME TO SELL EWES

Animals Not Desirable for Another Year's Breeding Should Be Sold in Autumn.

The summer or early fall, soon after the lambs have been weaned or marketed, is the best time to dispose of ewes that are not considered desirable for another year's breeding, say sheep specialists of the United States department of agriculture. The ewes that are to raise the next crop of lambs can then be prepared for fall breeding. Ewes of the mutton breeds do not ordinarily breed well nor keep in good condition after 5 years of age. Their usefulness, however, depends more upon the condition of their teeth than upon their actual age. Fine-wool ewes usually remain useful to a later age. It is a good plan to sell aged ewes before they become too run down to be valuable to the butcher. The ewes that give the most milk and raise the best lambs are likely to be quite thin at this time and should not be judged by their appearance.

Nonbreeding ewes, poor milkers, light shearers, and mothers of inferior lambs should be marked as their defects are discovered, and should be disposed of at this time. Their places should be filled by the best individuals among the yearling ewes and from the best breeding older ewes.

ERADICATION OF SHEEP SCAB

Comparatively Easy to Reduce Infection to Point Where It Ceases to Cause Big Loss.

With our present knowledge of and experience in sheep-scab eradication work it is comparatively easy to reduce the infection to a point where it ceases to cause economic loss, but the complete eradication of the parasite over such vast areas is a problem requiring patience and diligence. Where the eradication work is supervised by a well-organized force of trained field men, the percentage of infected flocks can be reduced very rapidly until it reaches a fraction of 1 per cent; but to reduce that fraction to zero requires very careful and systematic work, with the full co-operation of the sheep owners. As soon as the disease is reduced to a point where the economic loss is little or nothing, many sheep owners lose sight of the importance of continuing systematic efforts for complete eradication. It is necessary, however, for the protection of the sheep industry that the efforts be continued until the pest is completely eradicated.

RAILROAD DELUSIONS.

Mr. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania must be woefully mistaken when he says that thirty-six railroads failed to earn their operating expenses for the month of January and twenty-eight additional roads did not earn their taxes and fixed charges.

He must likewise be mistaken when he says that these sixty-four companies which control approximately 40 per cent of the total mileage have dismissed 200,000 employees in order to reduce their operating costs.

We have been reading the Republican national platform and the Republican campaign text-book for 1920 and Mr. Atterbury cannot possibly be right. All the problems of the railroad were solved by the Sixty-sixth Congress a year ago despite the iniquity of a Democratic Administration. The Esch-Cummings act settled everything.

If Mr. Atterbury doubts it or not the railroad employees who are out of work doubt it. We command to their consideration that plank in the Republican platform which affirms that—

The Republican Congress has met the problems presented by the Administration's unpreparedness for peace. It has repealed the greater part of the vexatious war legislation. It has enacted a Transportation Act making possible the rehabilitation of the railroad system of the country, the operation of which under the present Democratic Administration has been wasteful, extravagant and inefficient in the highest degree.

The railroads may think that something is wrong, but it is evident that a delusion of super-prosperity. They have been rehabilitated by a Republican Congress, and anybody who has been rehabilitated by a Republican Congress has attained the pinnacles of an earthly paradise.

As for 370,000 railroad employees who are threatening to strike if their wages are reduced it is plain that they never studied that Magna Charta of Normalcy, Mr. Harding's speech of acceptance.

I am thinking of the railroads. In modern life they are the very base of all our activities and interchanges. For public protection we have enacted laws providing for a regulation on the capital invested and a limitation on the capital's earnings. There remains only competition of service on which to base our hopes for an efficiency and expansion which meet our modern requirements. The railway workmen ought to be the best paid and know the best working conditions in the world. There is an exceptional responsibility.

The importance of the railway rehabilitation is so obvious that reference seems uncalled for. We are so confident that much of the present day insufficiency of transportation are due to the withering hand of Government operations to Government ownership, we want to expedite the reparation and make sure the mistake is not repeated.

It is of little use to recite the story of development, exploitation, Government experiment and its neglect. Government operation and its failures. The inadequacy of trackage and terminal facilities, the insufficiency of equipment and the inefficiency of operation—all bear the blighting stamp of government incapacity under Federal operation.

The "withering hand of the Government was long ago withdrawn, the "blighting stamp" was erased, the "governmental incapacity" was obliterated and perfection now reigns. The railroads are not bothered about inadequate terminal facilities and trackage or insufficient equipment. It does not trouble them to haul what freight they can get.

There can be no truth in the report of prospective wage reductions, because wages are reduced only when the blundering Democrats control Congress and meddle with the delicate machinery of economic adjustment.

Twenty-Mile Jump.
With the material at hand it is impossible for man to make an electric spark which will jump an opening of more than a few inches, but it is stated that a flash of lightning represents so much power that it frequently makes a jump of 20 miles from one cloud to another or from a cloud to the earth.

CIVIC CLUB NOTES

Rule for Bird Prize Contest

February 14 is an attractive and easy date to remember, and we needn't be told the reason—

"In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love; And he thinks his freckled Nancy is a right down turtle dove."

It is also, the very heart and center of the greatest Birthday Month on the calendar (making an exception of the single event which the world celebrates on Dec. 25.)

On Feb. 14 The Bedford Civic Club will have with them Miss Chase of State College who will address the meeting on the subject of "Thrift." Is this, you think, an inappropriate topic for consideration on Saint Valentine's Day? Oh, no. We have at hand a very interesting "Matrimonial Primer" which sagely makes the following statement important: "K stands for KISSES; it also stands for KITCHEN—their relative importance may need a mathematician." Attend the Civic Club "Thrift" meeting on Feb. 14 and bring Cupid along if you like.

On January 24, the Bird Prize Contest opened and we found ourselves faced with seventy-five children—38 of these were boys—37 were girls. This eager assembly was very exhilarating to the Chairman of the Contest who outlined the requirements and rules to them.

Last year 25 children entered the Contest, and the "courageous nineteen" you may remember, stuck to the end and were happy that they did so. We are in line for larger interest and greater results this year; and we hope to pursue this unending charm of Bird Lore, and make these Civic Club Bird Prize Contests an annual Bird Festival as well as expecting it to be a year 'round matter of interest to an ever enlarging circle of individuals.

The boys are making wooden bird houses (whatever house or houses they wish) but we especially recommend that they be for the purple martin the wren the blue bird and the woodpecker. The woodpecker is, of course a most excellent carpenter himself, but he is nevertheless glad to have a "ready made" edifice on a convenient tree trunk somewhere, and the boy who makes more than one house increases his good prize-winning qualities. The girls are making cardboard houses and shelter shelves.

At the April meeting of the Civic Club the boys will have the opportunity of selling their houses therefore a "Special" prize is offered to the girls to compensate for this boy advantage. This "Special Prize" to the girls is a beautiful book called "American Birds." (It differs from the book given in connection with each cash prize to boys and girls for the regular contest work.) It contains beautiful pictures and interesting accounts of 25 birds (representative American Birds) from the charming little humming-bird to the wonderful eagle. Nearly 40 contest girls have a chance to win this Special prize by producing any bit of Bird Lore that she wishes. We give the following suggestions for winning this prize—

1. The girl may equip a cardboard feeding shelf or car.
2. She may write an interesting description or account of a robin or a blue bird or any other bird.
3. She may write a Bird Story (real or imaginary) or a bird poem.
4. If she makes a full-sized martin house with card board it will come under "Special."
5. If she makes a wooden bird house, it will come under "Special."
6. Any piece of original bird lore work will be considered (except bookmaking and picture collecting as last year).

The chairman of the contest considers herself fortunate in being supported by a most competent committee—all bird lovers and craftsmen each in their own line. They're not lookin' for praise but they are going to get it any way. Besides the chairman, the committee members are Miss Helena Donahoe, Miss Mary Donahoe, Miss Bess Metzger, and Miss Annie Gilchrist. Miss Helena has long been a bird lover as well as business woman and she serves on the committee as "bureau of information" on bird observations. We might mention in passing that Santa Claus had the discernment to drop a fine new pair of nature study glasses down her chimney this year, so she sees more than we. Miss Mary is superintendent of documents and announcements at the school house and disbursements of bird literature. Miss Bess Metzger is artist and architect for girls' card board houses and producers of models for the same. Her rival and able assistant is Miss Annie Gilchrist, business woman and bird lover extraordinary. The chairman would be powerless to conduct so large a contest without these loyal ladies nor would she by any of her "jobs" if she were not an ardent lover of Books, Birds, Babies, Boys and Bedford.

EVER AFTER

"You don't mind if we finish the story, do you, Ben? We have a story every night, don't we, kiddies?"

Two curly heads bobbed an eager assent.

"Tell us about the snow-white charger," little Jean demanded.

"So he rode away on his snow-white charger to right the wrong and to follow the king, and he rode and rode, until he came to the hut where the old witch lived."

Ben Prentiss watched her, wistfully. With an arm around each child, her bright hair close to Jean's dark curls, Madge had never looked prettier or more unattainable.

"And when the castle gates were opened, a beggar boy was standing outside and no one knew that he was Prince Charming in disguise."

The pretty story drew to its triumphant close.

"So they were married and there was feasting and laughter for seven days and they lived happily ever after."

"Happily ever after!" breathed Bobby boy.

"Yes, dear. Now run off to bed. Mother's waiting for you."

"Is Mr. Prentiss going to tell you a story now?"

"Perhaps."

"Are you going to tell me a story, Ben?"

"I don't know how to begin."

"All good stories begin with 'Once upon a time.'"

"Once upon a time there lived in a little cottage in the valley a poor woodchopper who had three sons. The oldest son was straight and fair and tall, and he longed for wealth and luxury as thirsty blossoms long for the dew. So one day, the old man gave him his blessing—for 'twas all he had to give—and he set out over the circling hills to the country that lies beyond. And by and by news of his adventures drifted back to the valley, but he never came back and he never found the pot of gold."

"Now, the second son was rosy and merry and dark. And one sunny day the father gave him his blessing, and he, too, set out over the circling hills. And because he was rosy and merry and dark, he met a maiden and they loved and married and lived in a little cottage of their own beside a sparkling stream."

"And the youngest son was a dreamer."

"Now, there lived in that same country a king whose gray castle crowned the hilltop. The king had a daughter, the Princess Winsome, whose hair was like spun gold and whose cheeks were like the apple blossoms in the springtime. And the woodchopper's boy used to see the princess riding past his cottage, and he used to pick the prettiest wild flowers to give her as she passed. And once, at the feast of St. Valentine, he broke his little bank to buy a lacy token and put it on the castle steps."

"Now as the Princess Winsome grew up 'twas said that whoever had the most to offer—be he prince or only freeman—should win her hand in marriage. How the woodchopper's son longed for the day when he, too, should venture beyond the circling hills to sail the seven seas, for he dared to hope that he might bring back treasures rich enough and fair enough to win the hand of the Princess Winsome. But when he spoke of going, the father said:

"Who will chop the wood if thou shouldst leave me? Who will till the fields and tend the sheep?"

"So, because he was old and needed him, the youngest son stayed with the father and tried to forget the land beyond the hills."

"And how does the story end?"

Madge prompted softly.

"I'm sorry, Madge," he blurted, "it's a silly story and couldn't interest you—I guess I'd better go."

Softly, as if she had not heard, she took up the story.

"And many suitors came to the castle on the hill and right royally were they entertained. Then one by one they boasted of their valiant deeds and begged the Princess Winsome to marry them. But she only smiled and shook her head, and one by one they went away. So the princess waited until one day the woodchopper's son appeared at the castle gate, and then the princess was very, very happy, for she knew he was her prince in disguise."

"Madge! You don't mean—you can't mean!"

In the moonlight her little face was like a flower, tip-tilted.

"But Madge, dear I've nothing to offer you—except love."

"You have the only things I want—dreams and a heart of gold."

"Oh Mr. Prentiss," Bobby-boy, pajama-clad and breathless, appeared in the doorway. "We couldn't hear the rest of your story. Did they get married and live happily ever after?"

"Happily ever after," Ben agreed solemnly.

Bobby-boy disappeared with a jerk, and Jean's excited whisper shrilled through the summer night.

"Bobby! Auntie Madge was kissing him. I'm going to tell mamma!"

Prentiss laughed and drew the girl closer. "And so they were married," he whispered.

"And there was feasting and laughter for seven days," Madge dimpled, "although the court gossips said 'twas the princess who proposed."

Questions.

1. Are colds contagious?
2. What are the frequent sequelae or after effect of a cold?
3. What means may be taken to prevent a cold?

COMMON COLDS

The house vestibule is pain, but the nose the vestibule of the lungs has a number of bony projections covered with a membrane crowded with small vessels filled with heated blood, which stand out like radiators to warm the breathed in air, before it passes into the throat and lungs.

In health, this membrane constantly secretes a thin fluid which serves the two-fold purpose of lubricating the parts, and assisted by the airy growth in the nose, of capturing and preventing the passage of germs into the further air passages which terminate in the lungs.

As long as conditions are normal the mucous membrane with its secretion acts as an adequate protection against disease germs and there is little danger of their penetration beneath its surface. But when for any reason the circulation is interfered with and the vitality of the part lessened, disease germs which were before unable to do harm, penetrate the surface and the result is what is known as "Cold in the Head," which frequently extends into the throat and the lungs, often results in pneumonia and death.

The Vaso Motor Nerves, which control the contraction and expansion of arteries play an important part in the constant warfare which is being waged by the defensive forces of the body against its silent enemies—the disease germs. The blush which suffuses the face of the timid girl, the pallor which marks sudden fright and the deep red flush which denotes anger in the man, are all caused by the action of the Vaso Motors, either in causing the arteries to open up and allow a greater inflow of blood, or to become smaller and lessen it. In whatever part of the body the Vaso Motor stimulates the blood vessels to contraction, there is a decreased blood supply which means lessening of nutrition and a consequent lowering of resisting power. The Vaso Motors have a tendency to play in pairs, particularly those governing members which are alike, as the eyes, the hands, etc.

The Vaso Motor Nerves not only appear to work in pairs in members which are alike, but certain portions of the body sympathetically respond to stimulation in certain other portions of the body. As for instance, there is a response between the feet and the throat. Though the body be warmly clad, cold, wet feet will result in a depression in the circulation and general nutrition of the throat and pharynx, with the frequent sequence of sore throat.

The tape of the neck has a sympathetic relation to the whole head. Frequently a draft upon the nape of the neck is followed by a common cold. When the resisting power of the mucous membrane is lowered the germs begin to develop rapidly. Nature attempts to expel them by sneezing, then comes a short period of dryness of the membrane, which is followed by a watery discharge. If the cold stop at this stage it is attended with little discomfort and no danger. But there is a tendency for the germs to go further. Should they go upward into the upper sinuses of the nose, between and back of the eyebrows, into the cavities back of the cheek or along the bony tubes which lead from the throat to the ears, serious complications which may require long and continued special treatment is apt to follow. Should they make their way backward—the throat and lungs may become infected—making an open road for germs of pneumonia or tuberculosis.

When a cold has once started, the germs become more virulent and when coughed or sneezed much more likely to penetrate the mucous membrane of other persons. Therefore, on account of this communicability, persons who are suffering from what is known as a common cold should avoid close contact with other persons and should never cough or sneeze without covering the mouth and nose with a handkerchief. As the germs are contained in the saliva, care should be exercised about using drinking vessels, knives, forks and spoons after any person having a cold.

The secretions of the mouth and nose come in frequent contact with the hand. Therefore, "Clean Hands"—at all times—especially before eating. Whatever depresses the physical forces of the body—disposes it to colds.

As for instance, insufficient food or sleep, over fatigue, of all kinds—over work, either mental or physical. To guard against colds, clothing should be of such texture as to permit skin ventilation—warm feet—over shoes in damp weather, proper house ventilation with the temperature never above 70 degrees. Keep the skin clear and the muscular system toned by systematic daily exercise.

Crowded places such as street cars, and public gatherings, usually poorly ventilated and over heated are ideal either for contracting or spreading colds.

If a common cold shows a tendency to extend to the throat and lungs, consult a physician at once.

CARING FOR BREEDING DUCKS

If Not Kept for Production of Market Eggs Fowls Should Be Given Grass Range

Breeding ducks, if not kept for the production of market eggs, should have a grass range. If possible, after the hatching season is over and he fed sparingly on a mash of 1 part, by weight, corn meal, 2 parts bran, 1 part low-grade wheat flour, 1 part green feed, 8 per cent beef scrap and 8 per cent grit, given once or twice daily, with one feed of mixed grains; or the mash may be made of 3 parts, by measure, corn meal, 4 parts bran, 2 parts low-grade wheat flour, three-fourths part beef scrap, and 2 parts of green feed, with a small amount of grit and shell or mineral matter.

Feed Pekin ducks for eggs, beginning about December 1, on 1 pound of corn meal, 1 pound of low-grade flour or middlings, 1 pound of bran, 15 per cent of beef scrap, 15 per cent of vegetables or green feed, and some grit, feeding this mash twice daily, in the morning and at night; also giving 1 quart of mixed corn and wheat to every 30 ducks at noon when they are laying heavily. These laying rations should be fed throughout the year to Indian Runners or to any breed of ducks kept principally for the production of market eggs, poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture say. If the Indian Runner ducks are not laying, they should be fed sparingly. All rations are by weight unless otherwise stated. Thirty laying ducks (Pekins) will eat about 10 quarts of moist mash at each meal.

FEEDING FOWLS FOR PROFIT

Early Hatched Chick Will Reach Laying Maturity Before Commencement of Cold Season.

The first rule for getting a good profit from poultry is to get the chicks hatched early, and the next is to keep them growing so that they will reach laying maturity before the commencement of cold weather. There is no profit in keeping a chicken just alive, whether it is intended for laying stock or for the market. One reason why more care should be exercised in feeding fowls is that the chicks know less about what is good for them than do the fowls. The healthy chick is a hungry thing and will eat what is given it; the digestive organs being weak are less able to dispose of objectionable feed than are those of older fowls.

Young chicks should be fed a little at a time and often, poultry specialists in United States department of agriculture say. They should be fed early in the morning and just before going to bed at night, and not less than three times in the intervening period. For the first two weeks they may be fed three meals of soft feed and two of hard, and after that age two of soft and three of hard, less soft feed being fed as they grow older. No more moistened soft feed should be given at one time than they will eat up clean.

A New Romance of the Storm Country

Chapter XIV (Continued from last week.)

he pronounced her name that dispelled her reverie instantly. "Yes," she breathed. "Yes, what is it?"

Pendlehaven cleared his throat. "I would never have believed that anyone could have worried her way into my heart as you have," he told her. "How would—how would you like me for your father?"

Tony tried to speak but, seeing he had something else to add, waited expectantly.

"Once, as you know," went on the doctor, "I had a little girl of my own, but the years have been so long and so many since she was taken away, I feel I shan't have her again in this world."

Tony's dark head dropped against his knee in silent sympathy. "Could you think of me as your father, dear?" he said after an emotional silence.

"I'm not fit for that," sighed Tony. "No, no, not that. I come from people who are not your kind, Cousin Paul. You know that! Everybody does! Then I'm not so good as you think I am. First of all I haven't always told you the truth."

"So my brother told me," remarked Doctor Paul. "Long ago he took me into his confidence about the poison in my medicine. I've watched you for two years, Tony, and it seems to me that I know every secret of your soul. I'm sure you love me, dear child. I'm going to adopt you legally for my daughter. After this I'm your father, and I give warning to my Captain MacCauley that if he tries to take you from me, he's going to have some fight on his hands. From now on, I'm not Cousin Paul. I am—what?"

"My father," gulped Tony. "It seems as if I couldn't stand so much happiness. And if you're my father, that makes Cousin John—"

"Your uncle," laughed a voice from the door. "So Paul has told you, has he, little girl? Well, Tony, you wouldn't have slept a wink one night if you'd heard our argument about you. We spent several hours wrangling which of us should adopt you. I said I should because I saw you first, and Paul—"

"Has the prior right because you saved me, Tony," interrupted Paul. "Now I think the family had better know of our changed arrangements."

Paul Pendlehaven—acted as spokesman when Mrs. Curtis and her daughter, Katherine, had been summoned to the library. He told them very gravely that as his will now stood, his brother, John, and his cousin, Sarah, were the beneficiaries of it. Mrs. Curtis smiled at him and arranged the lace ruffles around her neck.

"You've always been most generous, Paul dear," she murmured. "But now," went on the doctor, paying no heed to the lady's remark, "our household's going to have a mistress."

Katherine lifted her chin from the palm of her hand, and Mrs. Curtis straightened up. Were her ambitions going to be realized after all? Was it Paul who was going to put her in her rightful place? The smile broadened on her lips, and she sank back with a happy sigh. She had to admit Cousin Paul looked very handsome, yes, even handsomer than Cousin John. What a fool she had been not to have caught him sooner.

"The woman you put at the head of your home will be most fortunate and happy, dear Paul," she murmured. "I hope so," returned Pendlehaven, and Doctor John pulled at the corners of his mouth to keep back a malicious grin.

"I'm going to adopt Tony Devon—" Doctor Paul had only time enough to make this statement when Mrs. Curtis jumped to her feet. "You couldn't do that!" she cried. "That would be wicked! Paul, absolutely wicked! Oh God, don't do that!"

Without heeding in the slightest his cousin's bitter ejaculation, Paul Pendlehaven picked up a box that lay at his elbow. With much ceremony he opened it and took out an exquisite pearl necklace.

"I do not need to remind any of you," he said, turning his eyes from his brother to his two white-faced cousins, "that these belonged to my dear wife. I have always considered them the property of her daughter—me. That is the reason, Katherine, why I've always refused your request to wear them. But now I have a daughter." He turned smiling eyes upon Tonnibel. "I shall allow her to wear them whenever she wishes, and if her lost sister isn't found, then they are hers—hers forever."

A long hissing breath came from Sarah Curtis, and a gasp came from Katherine.

"I couldn't wear them," Tony got out at length. "I simply couldn't."

Not to please me, your father, Tonnibel?" demanded Paul, almost brusquely.

"And me, your new uncle? laughed Doctor John. "Why, honey, little girl," he reached out and took Tonnibel's hand, "don't look as if you'd lost your last friend!"

Then Paul Pendlehaven drew Tonnibel Devon to his side, and when he had clasped the jewels around her neck, he lifted her face and kissed her.

"There, little daughter!" His voice choked with emotion, but he conquered his feelings and went on, "they're very lovely, very precious, Tony, doubly so because you're wearing them."

"Oh," she exulted, "how happy I am!" It isn't the pearls, though they're simply great, but it's that I have some real people." She turned a flushed and radiant face to each man. "Somebody that's my very own. My mother's dead, and my father—"

"Is in prison," snapped Mrs. Curtis. "Indictively." "I'm wondering what he'll say to all this when he comes home."

"His opinion won't make any difference to us," Paul Pendlehaven stated coolly. "He has forfeited every right to any claim on Tony."

"Hideous!" exclaimed Mrs. Curtis, and "Well, I never," dropped from Katherine.

"And," went on Doctor Paul, relentlessly, for he knew the barbs that were being thrust into the souls of his two cousins. "I'm going to change my will in favor of my new daughter here—"

"And I mine in favor of our young Salvation Army captain who is going to marry my new niece," chuckled Doctor John. "I guess that's all we have to say, Paul."

In silence Katherine and Mrs. Curtis faded from the room, carrying with them bitter humiliation and nursing outraged feelings.

"It's all your fault, mamma," scolded Katherine, bursting into tears when they were in the seclusion of their own apartments. "You've whined and wept yourself right out of Cousin John's life, that's what you've done. God, how I hated that girl when I saw Caroline's pearls around her neck!"

"What are you doing now?" thrust back her mother. "Aren't you crying as if your heart would break? I tell you tears—"

"Oh Lord, tears! What good do they do?" came sharply. "Here we are without a future, without a home! That interloper will see we go the moment Paul gets out those papers! Oh, what shall we do?"

"I wish that man—her father, I mean—was out of jail," mused Mrs. Curtis. "I really believe he could do something, K. H. Perhaps, Reggie—"

Katherine wiped her eyes with a sudden movement. "Mamma, why don't you send for Reggie?" she questioned. "Now, listen to me, Reggie confided in me before he left that he really was fond of that girl, and if—Oh, mamma, I've thought of a wonderful thing. Send for Reggie, shove the girl under Phil's nose every minute. Let him cut Philip out—"

"And perhaps have my son marry that thing," objected the mother curtly.

"That thing, as you please to call Tony Devon, is one of the prettiest and richest young women in this county," Katherine snapped back. "She's the heiress to the Pendlehavens, and engaged to be married to a man who owns half the town. Thing, eh? Well, I think she's a little higher up in the world at this moment than my half-brother, Reggie, if you want my opinion."

That night an urgent message from the frantic mother traveled by wire to Reginald Curtis, summoning him home.

CHAPTER XV.

The Last Card.

One day, some weeks later, Reginald Curtis walked rapidly along the boulevard, the row of squatter shacks, he received word that Uriah Devon, released from prison, would anchor the Dirty Mary near the Hoghole in her accustomed place. Devon was on deck when Brown ran up the gangplank.

"So you came, old top," was Uriah's greeting. "It's good you did; I want to know what's doin'."

A woman came to the door of the cabin and peered out. When she saw the newcomer, she scowled and went back.

"I thought you said she was dead," commented Reggie, with a wag of his head toward the spot where the woman had stood.

"Well, she ain't! Worse luck!" growled Uriah. "I told that to the kid to make her feel bad. Edie was willing to be read for a while, anyhow. What's the news of Tony?"

"Oh, she's a lady now," answered Reggie, sarcastically. "The Pendlehavens have sent her to school ever since you went away. My mother tells me Paul Pendlehaven's going to adopt her. And what do you think else?" he demanded.

"I dunno," grunted the other. "Good God! Don't sit there tearin' me to pieces with curiosity. Fire ahead, and tell me."

"She's copped Phil MacCauley," returned Reginald; "Ithaca's snob of a Salvation Army captain, the fellow who threw me in the lake that day, and he's as rich as the Pendlehavens put together."

"Well, he won't get 'er," asserted Uriah, sharply. "I've told you the girl's rich too. Her father's got money to burn."

"A lot of good that'll do you, Ry," sneered Reggie. "She wouldn't look at the likes of you and Edith. You aren't in her class any more."

"Ain't I so?" queried Devon, growling. "I reckon her hide ain't no tougher nor thick'n it used to be. I'll thump h—ll out of 'er once or twice; I'll show 'er what class she's in."

"You'll have to catch her before you beat her, won't you, Ry?" Reggie inquired tauntingly. "How're you going to get your hands on her? Tell me that, will you?"

"Yep, Mr. Mealy-mouth, I will," thrust back Devon. "We got to steal 'er." He clenched his heavy fist and swung it menacingly and suggestively. "What's left of 'er when I'm done with 'er I'll marry you all right. That over, I'll tell 'er who she is, providin' you promise to halve up the stuff with me."

"I did promise you once, didn't I?" asked Reggie, sulkily. "Of course, I will, but what's the use of dreaming? The Pendlehavens're too much for us. Now that Paul's well, he and John are a big team, and they worship the ground that girl walks on. You're biting off more'n you can chew, Ry. You aren't any too strong, you know. A prison record doesn't help any."

Uriah grunted and followed a ring of smoke with his frowning eyes.

"She's my girl," he said at length, "and I'm goin' to have 'er."

"I thought you said she wasn't," put in Reggie, suspiciously.

"Well, she don't know that, does she?" Devon retorted. "Nobody knows but you and Edie, besides me."

"She's a beauty," sighed Reggie, his voice lowered to a growl. "I'd marry her if she didn't have a cent."

"You don't need to make any such sacrifice, old horse," said Devon. "Your eyes will bung out of your head when you hear her name."

Reginald argued he should know who the girl was before he married her, but Uriah wouldn't give up his secret. Indeed, he unfolded to the prospective husband how he planned to capture Tonnibel, and sent Reggie away convinced, red hot to perform his part in the scheme. At last, he was to have the girl he wanted and money too.

The next morning Reggie approached his mother with an air of secrecy.

"A minute, mater," he said softly. "Just a minute! I've seen Tony Devon's father. There! Now sit down, old lady, while I tell you something."

Ry Says the Only Way Is to Kidnap Her Bodily."

Ry says the only way is to kidnap her bodily and force her to marry the man he promised her to," the boy explained. "What do you think of that?"

"Paul would kill him," gasped Mrs. Curtis, her eyes taking on an expression of fear.

"He won't have a chance if Devon works out his present scheme," replied Reggie, "but you and Kathie have to help us."

In the terror that overtook her, Mrs. Curtis shook her head.

"I don't want anything to do with it," she objected, wobbling in tears.

"We'd lose our home. Paul and John would turn us out. They've threatened to many a time!"

"Well, when I assure you our beloved cousins won't know anything about it, not even after it's over, won't you try to help us?" queried the young man. "Now, if it goes through all right, you catch Cousin John on the rebound, and Kathie'll be sure to rope in Phil."

"What girl that would be!" ejaculated Mrs. Curtis. "What about it?" Then Reggie told her, in very low tones, the plan they had concocted.

"You talk it over with Kathie," he advised, lighting a cigarette, "and you'll have to see Devon about the money."

"I'll get it for him if I have to sell my jewels and Kathie's too," promised the woman, her eyes sparkling in anticipation. "I'll go and tell her right away."

Meanwhile, all unconscious that Uriah Devon had been released from prison and was conspiring against her, Tonnibel Devon was entering heart and soul into the Salvation Army work with Philip. Each evening she went with him to headquarters where her fresh, young voice and her kindness drew many a poor soul for comfort and courage.

One week after Reginald, Curtis had confided his secret to his mother, and she had told it over again in whispers to Katherine, at an hour when the Pendlehaven brothers were absent, Uriah Devon came quietly to the house. Reggie met him and took him immediately to Mrs. Curtis' room.

Uriah paused embarrassedly before her, made a curt bow and twisted his cap between his fingers.

"Sit down, Ry," invited Reggie. "Now tell my mother how you are going to carry this thing out."

Uriah sat on the edge of a chair. "I ain't goin' to do anything, or tell what I'm goin' to do, till I get the money," he said crisply. "I've got to have five thousand dollars first."

"Five thousand dollars, old lady," grinned Reggie, turning to his mother. "You'll have to cough up."

Now, for God's sake, don't cry! Dig! "I'll need the whole five thousand to get 'er away, and to keep 'er after I get 'er. She'd come streakin' back if I don't rope 'er up."

"I'll get the money for you tomorrow," sighed Mrs. Curtis, wiping her eyes, "and you mustn't come here when my cousins are home." She relapsed into silence and then added: "I warn you against—against Philip MacCauley too."

Mrs. Curtis had been all eyes and ears for even the slightest happening in the Pendlehaven home, since she had almost stripped her jewel-box and Katherine's to get the money Tony's father demanded. Now she had it tucked away, ready to deliver it, but as the time went by and she had no chance to send for Uriah to come for his daughter, she began to give up hope that the house would ever be rid of the presence which was a constant thorn in her flesh. But it does seem that sooner or later Fate plays the lucky cards into the hands of the undeserving, and so it happened in the case of the conspirators against Tonnibel Devon. Like all things waited for, the opportunity came one day while the family was at dinner.

Philip MacCauley entered in great excitement.

"You look as if you had swallowed the sun, my dear lad," smiled Doctor Paul.

"I've got to go away," flushed the boy, laughing. "And I won't go alone." He gazed meaningly at Tonnibel. "Pardon my rushing in this way, but—but I want Tony to go with me."

Mrs. Curtis flashed him a dark look. He rarely paid her, or her frowning daughter, any attention nowadays, so he did not notice that a pallor settled on Katherine's face, or that her fork fell from her limp fingers to the plate.

The mother saw her daughter's mental distress, however, and studied the young man's face, groaning to herself. He had grown so manly and handsome in the past two years, and he was the one person she desired for her son-in-law. He was rich, too, which only added to his attractiveness.

"You might explain a little more, my boy," Doctor John spoke up in a deep voice.

An embarrassed laugh fell from Philip's lips.

"There isn't any secret about it," he answered. "I'm going abroad for the Salvation Army for a year, longer perhaps, and it would be too much to ask me to go all by myself."

Lines appeared between Doctor Paul's brows. At last the day had come when he must give up the girl who had taken a rare place among those he held dearest. He noticed with a quick sigh that Tony's eyes deepened softly, and her red lips were parted in a smile.

"I'll hurry up our marriage a little," Philip continued, "but—but—"

The sound of a chair scraping back from the table broke off his statement.

"Then we'll adjourn and talk it over," remarked Doctor John. "You ask a mighty big thing, Phil, when you demand our little girl without more warning."

"Little girl," sneered Mrs. Curtis, after the four had left the dining room. It happened, much to her surprise, that Doctor John sought her out within the hour.

"Those children have won Paul and me over, Sarah," he said a little grimly. "They're going to be married a week from today. It won't be much trouble to prepare the house, will it? You needn't make a fuss. I'll be very quiet. Tony can buy everything she needs in New York on her honeymoon."

In the rage that overtook her, Mrs. Curtis wished the speaker dead at her feet.

"The house isn't mine, Cousin John," she said maliciously, "but, of course, I'll do what I can, although Katherine isn't at all well. I fear the child is going to be ill."

Doctor John found Katherine with her eyes dull and heavy, prescribed for her, and, before leaving the room, announced:

"Paul and I are going over to Syracuse tomorrow afternoon to make a few purchases, but we'll be back on the night train. Stay in bed, Kathie, until morning, and you'll be all right."

SEASONABLE FOODS.

The following is a different way of serving ham, making a dish which is a whole meal, served in one dish.

Baked Ham With Vegetables.—Take a slice of ham cut an inch thick; place in a casserole and around it place two Bermuda onions sliced, five tomatoes sliced on the same amount of cooked tomato, one-half cupful of water. Cover and bake in a moderate oven one hour.

Spiced Bread-Crumbs Pudding.—Take one cupful each of bread crumbs, sour milk and brown sugar, one-fourth of a cupful of shortening, one-half cupful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful of cloves, two tablespoonfuls of molasses, one teaspoonful of soda and three-fourths of a cupful of raisins. Soak the bread crumbs in the sour milk one-half hour. Cream the shortening and sugar together and add the molasses and flour sifted with the spices and soda. Add the raisins; then add to the bread crumbs and milk. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake in a slow oven 45 minutes. Serve hot or cold. This recipe will serve eight.

Chestnut Salad.—Shell one pound of chestnuts, boil until tender and remove the skins, being careful not to break the nuts. While hot pour over the nuts one-fourth of a cupful of French dressing and set away to marinate for two hours. Add one tablespoonful of pate de foie gras to one-half cupful of mayonnaise. Mix with the chestnuts and serve on lettuce. Serve very cold.

Potato Dumplings.—Grate potatoes and drain in a cheesecloth; squeeze out the liquid and let it settle. Drain off carefully and add the starch which has settled to the grated potato. Season; make into balls the size of walnuts; cook in boiling water 15 minutes. Serve with hot bacon fat or browned butter poured over them. These may be served with crisped rolls of bacon as a garnish for a luncheon dish.

MINISTERS OF GOSPEL PUT TANLAC TO TEST

Well-Known Clergymen Tell What They Know To Be Truth About Medicine That Has Helped Them.

Rarely will a minister of the Gospel indorse a proprietary medicine. The preacher's high calling, the influence he commands, put a grave responsibility on his every word. He will not jeopardize his reputation by commending a thing without first assuring himself it is all right. His word carries as much weight in the home, on the street, or in the public prints as in the pulpit. When ministers of some of the greatest communions in the land indorse Tanlac, their words carry conviction. They say what they know to be the truth. They have put Tanlac to the test of personal service and have not found it wanting.

The proprietors of Tanlac have received countless testimonials from people in every walk of life, earnestly commending it. Among them are a number of prominent ministers of various churches. A few of these are printed below:

Rev. Charles H. Sanders, 1824 Fourth ave., Huntington, W. Va., who is widely known as an evangelist, especially in the Southern States, where he has been minister in the Southern Methodist Church, West Virginia Conference, for twenty-five years, and who is also a member of I. O. O. F. Lodge No. 251, says: "Tanlac has benefited me so much I wish I could go all over the country and tell the people about this wonderful medicine."

Rev. A. H. Sykes, pastor of Watkins Park Presbyterian Church, Nashville, Tenn., says: "Mrs. Sykes suffered from stomach and kidney troubles and a nervous breakdown. Tanlac restored her health—she is gaining strength and flesh rapidly—her full restoration is but a question of time."

Rev. E. G. Butler, pastor of Central Baptist Church, Muskogee, Okla., says: "I had attacks of acute indigestion. Results from taking Tanlac have been most satisfactory, am glad to recommend it as the best medicine I have ever tried."

Rev. F. M. Winburn, Methodist, San Antonio, Tex., says: "I had no appetite—suffered from weakness and general debility—could not work without quickly tiring. Found Tanlac just what my system needed. I consider Tanlac a good medicine to build up run-down systems."

Rev. R. J. Taylor, pastor Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church, Franklin, Texas, says: "Grippe left me in very bad shape—had indigestion, nervous headaches—could not sleep well. Tanlac gave me a good appetite strengthened my nerves, I sleep as well as ever—have gained five pounds."

Rev. A. L. Tull, Methodist, Atlanta, Ga., says: "My granddaughter was a nervous wreck from indigestion. Tanlac gave her an appetite she can eat anything. She is on the road to recovery."

Rev. Jas. H. New, Baptist, Clarkston, Ga., says: "My wife had severe cramps, headaches, was very nervous badly rundown, weak and thin. Tanlac caused her troubles to disappear—she never complains now."

Rev. A. J. Vallery, former superintendent Bethany Home, Monroe, La., now of Memphis, Tenn., says: "Three years ago I had a general breakdown with indigestion—had rheumatic pains in legs. Since taking Tanlac am relieved of indigestion—rheumatic pains have stopped feel like a new man. I give Tanlac my unqualified indorsement."

Rev. John M. Sims, Baptist, Atlanta, Ga., says: I suffered from nervous indigestion and inactive liver, indigestion badly impaired. Tanlac corrected these troubles entirely—gained ten pounds taking two bottles."

Rev. W. T. Roby, pastor West Lonsdale Methodist Church, Knoxville, Tenn., testifies from personal experience as to the great benefit he derived from taking Tanlac for disordered stomach.

Rev. J. H. Dunn, Church of Christ, Spokane, Wash., says: "I can conscientiously recommend Tanlac to everybody. It has not only relieved me of ten years' suffering, but it has built me up wonderfully and I've gained fifteen pounds in a month's time since taking it."

No greater praise can be given a remedy than the, unsolicited testimony of men whose lives are devoted to the betterment of their fellow-men. Their integrity cannot be doubted. They serve their calling often at great personal sacrifice. Tanlac has helped them—they say so because they want to do you good.

A CARNATION

By REBECCA T. FARNHAM.

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Eleanor was delighted with the carnations sent by her fiancé.

"How lovely of Ralph!" she murmured. "My favorite flower! I must thank him right away!"

She was soon carrying on an animated conversation at the phone and summoning the most delighted terms possible to express her undying gratitude for his gift. "I shall keep them always," she asserted, "in memory of my twenty-first birthday."

"All of them?"

"All, I shall not throw one away."

"Well, I'll be around tonight. Goodbye."

Ralph hung up the receiver and went on with his work. He was also young and to him any statement of Eleanor's, however exaggerated, was infallible.

"If she isn't the most adorable," he thought, "to promise to keep those flowers forever. My dear, sweet girl!"

That evening Eleanor was standing on the piazza waiting for Ralph. Nestling in her brown curls was a carnation selected from the big vaseful on the parlor table, and its color matched that of her cheeks and her beruffled organdie dress. A gentle breeze was blowing and as she was gazing down the street for a sight of Ralph a curl was wafted into her face. She pushed it back impatiently, unconsciously disturbing the flower in her hair. Again a breeze came and blew the lock into her face. Again she pushed it back and this time the carnation fell to the ground.

But Eleanor did not notice this. Far down the street she saw the broad shoulders of Ralph turning the corner. In a flash she had left the piazza and was in the parlor. She snatched a book from the table, arranged herself carefully in the chair by the window, and began to read industriously.

"Now, he'll think he's caught me napping," was her thought.

The steps rang as they came up the walk, but stopped suddenly as they reached the piazza. Eleanor kept her eyes fixed on the page while the color crept more deeply into her cheeks. If he thought that just by staring at her he was going to make her look up, he was mistaken. A bit of a smile played about her lips.

Then the steps began again, but they were receding! Surprise held Eleanor in her chair. When she at last jumped up and ran to the door only Ralph's back was visible as he turned the corner.

"He must have forgotten the candy," said Eleanor after a moment's thought. "Though he never has before."

The nearest candy store was three minutes away. Eleanor waited 30. Then she strolled out into the sitting room where the rest of the family were.

"Didn't Ralph come?" asked her mother.

"Detained at business at the last minute," said Eleanor, feigning a yawn. "Guess I'll get my embroidery."

She went up to her own room and flung herself upon the bed and cried until she finally dropped into a troubled sleep.

The following afternoon Eleanor went out on the piazza to feel the cool breeze on her hot, aching forehead. As she stood there a faint odor was wafted up to her, and looking down she saw a wilted carnation lying at her feet.

"Why, the flower I had on last night!" she marveled, and then there came a great light.

Ralph had not felt very well that morning. His pride was deeply wounded. That "she" should promise to do something and then deliberately not do it. An awful realization—his loved one false. In the afternoon came a telephone call.

"Hello."

"Is that you, Ralph?"

Those honeyed tones were only too familiar. "Yes," he said, icily.

"You didn't come last night."

"Silence. Then, finally: "Why not?"

"Business at the last minute," said Ralph coldly.

There was something like a gasp at the other end of the wire, and then the answer: "Oh, Ralph, I know that wasn't it! Tell me why you went away after you had come as far as the steps."

"I cannot explain fully here."

"Then come out here now. Never mind your work."

"All right, I'll come at once," he answered, the coldness almost gone from his voice. He would explain to her his attitude and say goodbye—forever.

Eleanor was quietly waiting for him. "Look," she said, and showed him a wilted, stemless flower which she held in her hand. "See, I had it in my hair last night, like this," she indicated a fresh flower resting in her hair. "It fell out as I was watching for you. I found it this afternoon. I said that I shouldn't throw any away. I shan't. I shall keep this one, and this in my hair, and all the others which you see in the vase there. I always keep my word," she added, and rose proudly.

"Eleanor," cried Ralph. She shone with a new light in his eyes. She was true, she was faithful. "Eleanor, I have wronged you. Will you forgive me?"

A minute later he held her in his arms and she did not resist him.

"Eleanor," said Ralph, softly, "let's never let a pink carnation come between us again."

You cannot sell your crops unless men are working. Men cannot work unless you buy the things they produce.

They cannot eat bread made of your wheat, wear clothing made of your wool, shirts made of your cotton, cannot consume your corn, oats, vegetables, fruit, etc., unless they are working.

They cannot work unless you keep on buying. If you stop buying—business stops—your business and their business.

This is the greatest country on earth and will continue to do business—but you give it a bad bump unless you keep on buying the things you need.

Perfectly safe, too—now that that prices are down.

DO YOU LIKE BANANAS?

The corporation which decides how many bananas we may have from day to day, and no more, more than doubled its wealth the last year or two. The United Fruit Company has its own fleet of steamers and controls the trade in shipment of fruits from our adjacent tropics. Its cheap labor gathers the free bananas God makes to grow so plentifully near the equator. Its steamers bring them to us, and we may eat them for 15 cents a pound or let them alone. Enough people with the banana habit buy this exploited product to help this fruit pirate-profitier double its capital every once in a while. Then because its insatiable greed cannot be satisfied with 100 per cent plus, it compels its banana-buying customers as well as those who cannot buy bananas, to pay its taxes to make up what the Government loses in revenues on the millions of distributors in stock dividends.

WILL MAKE YOUR COAL BURN LESS

One investigation has paid big the Senate investigation into the coal industry. It already has saved the Government between 8 and 10 million dollars on the coming year's coal bill and is going to protect the home consumer of coal from price-gouging in this necessity by putting the coal industry under close and competent regulation by the Federal Trade Commission. We thought the sugar bandits, who took nearly a billion dollars away from the American people were the worst profiteers, but coal consumers, it now is estimated were charged 2½ billion dollars more for coal last year than a fair price thru the profiteering by speculators who sold $3.25 coal to the War Department for $9 and $10 a ton. Most of the producers of coal were victims of these men along with the consumers. This robbery is now to be stopped. The time is coming when fair prices will be the rule in all things. That is the only business that prospers. Then we shall have true prosperity. Speed the day!

SMILES COME AGAIN TO PRETTY FACES

The Charm of Good Health Has Its Source in Rich Red Blood.—Nothing on Earth so Necessary for Beauty

PEPTO-MANGAN BUILDS RED BLOOD

Restores the Quality of Your Blood, Brings Back Your Color and Renews Vitality

Personal charm is like a light. It sheds its rays everywhere. Is the light of your personal charm hidden under the bushel of bad blood? Instead of habitual smiles do you wear a tired look almost a scowl? Do you tire easily? Are you pale and lacking in vital energy and ambition? You are not really ill. Your blood has become weak and sluggish. It is half starved. What you need is the blood making qualities of that splendid tonic, Pepto-Mangan. After you have taken Pepto-Mangan a little while you will feel a big improvement. The smiles will come back again. People will see a difference in you. You will make friends again. You will have plenty of rich, red blood and feel stronger.

Pepto-Mangan has been building red blood for years. Physicians prescribe it right along. It has just the ingredients that starved blood needs. Sold in liquid and tablet form. Both have the same effect. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan. Ask for "Gude's" and be sure that the full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on the package. Advertisement.

Petunia Blecher and Bob Smithers of Altoona started to Cumberland on their marriage trip. The first train they boarded the conductor told them they were on the wrong train that that train went to Huntingdon. They got off at the first station and took the first train back. When they got on the second train the conductor told them they were on the wrong train, that train went west. They got back in Altoona again and got on board the third train and were coming right but Bob was peeved and swore a little. A preacher sitting in front of them turned and said "Young man you are on the direct road to hell!" Why Bobbie dear" said Petunia, "we are on the wrong train again."

TEACHERS' PAY

Dr. Finegan Asks a Minimum Wage of $100 a Month.

Harrisburg, Feb. 8.—Efforts to get the administration educational program on its way were started today when State Superintendent of Public Instruction Finegan appeared before the House Committee on Education and explained what his department wants in the way of legislation. Better pay for teachers, increase in the school terms, increased qualification standards and a strengthening of the compulsory education law were among the things suggested by Dr. Finegan.

The question of increased salaries for the teachers, Dr. Finegan said, was largely a financial one, and its solution depended on the matter of increased revenues. He suggested a minimum salary of $100 a month for city and rural elementary school teachers. On the question of increased standards, Dr. Finegan warned against anything which would bring hardship to the experienced teachers now in service.

He said elementary school teachers should have a high school and normal school education, and high school teachers a college education, but added that extension courses could be provided to give teachers an opportunity to study and qualify. The lengthening of the school term, he said, could be done gradually through a period of six years.

State Highway Department Harrisburg, Pa.

January, 27, 1921.
To the Supervisors of Bedford County:

The Annual Convention of the Supervisors' Association of Bedford County, will be held in the Court House at Bedford, on Wednesday and Thursday, February 16 and 17, 1921. The meeting will be called to order by the officers of the Association at 10 A. M. You are urgently requested to attend this Convention as this is one of the most important duties of your office as Township Supervisor.

Either I or a representative of the Township Division will be present and will explain and answer questions relating to the State Reward Act. This is of vital importance to your county and to every Supervisor in the county because of the fact that during the present year Bedford County did not take full advantage of the provisions of this Act, and as the result, over $18,000 went to other counties that should have been spent on the roads and bridges of Bedford County.

Please arrange to be present at this meeting and bring your problems for discussion.

Yours very truly,

Joseph W. Hunter,
Township Commissioner.

FORESTRY DEPARTMENT HUNTING OUT BIG TREES

Bedford County Has One That Measures 32 Feet in Circumference

Harrisburg, Feb. 8.—The Pennsylvania department of forestry has begun a campaign to locate the big trees of Pennsylvania. It is collecting information on the largest specimen of each kind of the 100 different species of forest trees that grow in the state. Col. Henry W. Shoemaker, a member of state forest commission, and Prof. Joseph S. Illick, chief of the office of research, are in charge of the project.

Prof. Illick said he is seeking information about large unique and historic trees. He believes each county of the state has some champion tree and he wants to know about it.

Bedford county boasts of the largest swamp white oak yet found in Pennsylvania. That tree is thirty-two feet in circumference at the base. Dauphin county claims the largest sycamore, which is more than 25 feet in circumference at the base. It is declared that the state's largest sugar maple stands at Eaglesmere, Sullivan county.

Prof. Illick declares the following measurements of big trees: Circumference at base, circumference at breast height, total height of tree and the total spread of branches. Bedford County's big tree is on the Boor farm in Cumberland Valley.

Ex-President in Congress.

Only one president returned to public life after quitting his office. John Quincy Adams, retiring from the presidency in 1829, returned to Washington in 1831 as a member of the house of representatives at the age of sixty-four. Friends feared this step would dim the luster of his great fame, but his service in congress only added to his renown.
